

Title: Another Way: Cases report on nerve repair of Five Movements and Six Qi in Traditional Chinese Medicine

Author / Authors: Chaoming Weng

Institute of Life sciences, Beijing University of Chinese Medicine, Beijing, China

Abstract

By sharing four clinical difficult cases (new crown infection combined with loss of smell, loss of taste, Hemi-blindness after cerebral hemorrhage, Parkinson's disease), this film attempts to show that the clinical treatment under the guidance of the "Five movements and six Qi" law of traditional Chinese medicine is expected to break through the cognitive blind area of modern medicine and open up a new field of nerve repair. According to the expression of individual physical characteristics of patients in different time and space, we can achieve magical effect by adjusting the relationship between man and nature. This will also help us to have a deep understanding of the connotation of "Qi" in traditional Chinese medicine, and hope to get more beneficial inspiration in the collision with modern science such as system biology, clinical big data research, informatics, energy medicine, space-time medicine and so on.